IMMENSE CAVE NEAR CALIENTE TO BE EXPLORED

OGDEN. June 1.-E. returned from Callente, Nev. the discovery immense cave just west of that place. an immense cave just west of that place. The cave has been known for some time, but has never been explored. Mr. Wattis entered the cave and secured several specimens of stallagmittes, which he brought to Oxden. He says that there are great groves of trees of stallagmite formation growing from the bottom of the cave, and that he climbed one of these trees and broke off the specimens as he would the branch of a tree. In many places great caverns yawned before him and huge stones were dropped into the same, but the distance to the bottom was so great that no sound could be heard when they struck. The cavern will be fully explored in the near future.

FEWER SHEEP, BUT THE SAME QUANTITY OF WOOL

Special to The Tribune.

RAWLINS, Wyo., May 31.-The wool season in this section is now about over, most of this year's product having been shipped to markets. Some interesting figures are presented. Last year there were about 705,600 head of sheep In Carbon county. This year there were not more than 500,000 yet the number of pounds of wool produced was about the same for the two years. or about 4,500,000 pounds. One reason for the heavy crop this year was the sand. The open winter had caused the sand. The open winter had caused the sand to blow much more than ordinarlly and it made a considerable difference in the weight of each fleace. Wool sold at a higher price this year than last. The highest price paid in this county, and so far the highest quoted in the State was 15 cents, or a quarter of a cent lower than the highest price last year. Carbon county last year, clarked. last year. Carbon county last year als got the highest price offered,
